

CASE STUDY

Hilltop Companies helps Cincinnati Children's Hospital Enhance Care

New critical care tower helps organization further their mission.

CHALLENGE: Cincinnati Children's Hospital is developing a new critical care building, an expansion at the Burnet Campus. The concrete frame of the most expensive construction project ever undertaken by Children's will include pediatric, cardiac and neonatal intensive care units and will add hundreds of medical jobs. The patient tower will be approximately 635,000 square feet with 249 new beds.

SOLUTION: Messer Construction led the project as the general contractor and Jostin Construction provided the pumping, placement and finishing. Hilltop Companies was chosen as the ready-mixed concrete production partner because of their reputation and capacity to supply a large quantity of high-quality product, excellent customer service, and ability to deliver when and where it is needed.

APPROACH: Hilltop provided over 27,000 cubic yards of ready-mixed concrete. Because of the multiple applications, ten different mixes were needed on-site. Hilltop Companies delivered almost 3,000 truckloads over the course of the large and lengthy project to keep the project on track.

RESULTS: Children's plans to fully occupy the new space in November 2021. Brad Slabaugh, Hilltop's Vice President and General Manager, states "We are proud to be a part of this colossal building project that will bring a much-needed increase in critical care beds to area children along with thousands of jobs. It was an honor to help one of the best children's hospitals in the nation, Cincinnati Children's, continue to serve area patients and families."
